

Chapter 9: Divine Connection

The We

*I remember a time
When time was not When all that was
Was what could not be When who was All
And I was We.*

*When I existed as We
We were ablaze
The fire was power,
The light was life,
And I was not;
Alone did not exist.*

*But some part of the We broke off,
And throwing us out of balance
No longer a single living cell,
We scattered in many directions*

The Divine connection is the state of being where you and the Divine, whatever that means to you, exist in a free flowing connection. Your prayers, meditations, and positive attitude nurture your connection to the Divine. It is oneness at its best.

In contrast, your Divine connection is weakened by negative conversations and attitudes that resemble an atheist mindset, essentially not believing miracles are possible for you or anyone else.

Your Divine connection occurs naturally; everyone is born with this connection intact. Only you can break your connection with the Divine. You have to decide to sever the connection to have it unhooked. One of the reasons an individual chooses to disconnect from the Divine is the set of circumstances around their upbringing.

As a child grows, the emotional brain is developing. If their parent or guardian is particularly abusive or harmful, the child can develop a mindset where he or she believes there is no God and no hope. Ninety-nine percent of the time this detachment occurs prior to age ten. About three percent of humans are currently detached from their Divine connection.

At age twenty-five I disconnected from the Divine and lived as if God were dead for three years. Wow, you might wonder, how could a devout woman who prays all the time disconnect? Sometimes God says no, and in the no there is no “knowing.”

The years leading up to this point were some of the most difficult in my life. I had married a man committed to drinking, among other things. After seven years of marriage, most of which were unhappy as I tried to survive it and provide some happiness for my little ones, I finally broke into pieces. I developed terminal cancer, and was in a relationship most would consider abusive. I was sick, tired, depressed, and hopeless. I was in and out of hospitals and had been in a mental health hospital struggling with my emotions and severe depression.

Finally the doctors told me they would not allow me to return home because they feared I would die. I had to find a place to live and learn to live away from my husband and the stressors of an unhealthy relationship. I did this. This was the hardest thing I had ever done up to that point. I felt alone in the world. I wanted very much to have my children with me and fought for custody. However, I lost custody in divorce court.

I had never considered life without my children, and life without them was unbearable. But as I look back, I understand the court’s decision; I was so young and so very sick. I finally realized that the judge could not have made any other decision.

I was in unbearable pain. My prayers had fallen on deaf ears and so, I believed, God must be d-e-a-d.

This was most assuredly my “dark night of the soul.” I attended college and cried all day long. My solace was Mr. Rogers on the TV during my lunch break. I returned home to have a meal and catch another program of soothing Mr. Rogers. I guess he held the comforting God space until I could return to my direct connection with the Divine.

Life happens. Bad things happen to really good people and we learn and grow and take our spiritual steps out of these challenges. I do believe all the hardship in my life had purpose and formed me into the woman I am today. I am grateful for all the challenges. If I had physically raised my three children, I would not be now doing the work in the world I came to do, so it was a necessary severing of ties.

One day I had had enough, I missed my connection and as if I had awakened from a dream, I was back in the loving arms of Father God. Life for me is a million times better with the connection than without. If you have gone through this experience you will understand what I am talking about.

Your Divine Human Blueprint – Divine Connection

People whose Divine connection is severed will not see the value of reconnecting the link. Their energy vibration will typically be under a hundred and the way they view the world is from a lower, darker perspective.

If you don't feel your connection, but have a desire to be connected, you can activate the link with some very simple steps. First, “Know that it is already there and that you are bringing this connection back into the light.” This is easier than you think.

Three Simple Steps to Improving Your Divine Connection

1. Sit quietly and breathe in pink and Gold Energy deeply, breathe out and use your breath as signal to your body that it is time to relax.
2. Imagine yourself as a spirit, now seated in the center of your head.
3. Send a Gold cord up from the center of head to the Divine. Imagine it connecting in with the Divine.

Congratulations. You are connected!

Just in case you are struggling with an external block, say, some negative energy source outside you, perform the following procedure:

- Imagine a new connection cord pops over the old one and causes the older cord to disappear. Do this five times.
- Each time, you replace the old cord with a new Golden cord the former cord will disappear.

Once you have activated the Golden cord linking the center of the head to the Divine five times, you will be connected.

*The brightest parts became
The stars and planets;
Those parts of the We Became small
Became less brilliant*

*Because we could not access All
Of the light of the We,
We became confused in the spinning off
We became the many
We forgot the We.*

*The self
The sparkle*

Your Divine Human Blueprint – Divine Connection

*The glimmer
Became encompassed by a mass;
It had weight,
It moved, thought, and felt.*

*It responded to the temporary;
The unreal came to be
The unquestioned truth,
Though we all knew it was a lie.*

What could we do?

Repetition for Clearing Energy

Repetition is one of the most consistent and effective ways to clear unwanted energy. Think about it: the Catholic Rosary is the repetition of a prayer fifty-three times and the Yogic mantras are the repetition of a mantra 108 times. The Buddhist, Sikhs, Sufis, and virtually all major religious and spiritual groups have their own unique prayers for clearing.

If you would like to experience this process in a prayer format, I have created Illumination (www.julierenee.com), an advanced form of the Christ/Mary-inspired rosary. This rosary will raise your energetic signature, which supports the creation of miracles.

Divine connection can also be restored through reading scripture, especially high and inspiring passages. Such passages include the yogic sutras of Patanjali or the numerous Biblical passages related to love, such as

*Beloved, let us love one another,
For love is of God and everyone who loveth,
Is born of God and knoweth God
He that loveth not, knoweth not God *
For God Is Love.
Beloved let us love one another.

John 4:7&8

If your Divine connection is broken, you have willingly chosen to turn away from it in this life or in a past life. For example, I noticed a large tattoo on a man's forearm in the Las Vegas airport the other day, proclaiming him a "bad ass." Choosing to deliberately disconnect and then seal that concept into his cellular body by announcing it to everyone, he is creating a group meme or group mindset. He is broadcasting to all the folks that come in contact with him that he is tough and doesn't need anyone, as if to tell others that he rules his "bad-ass" kingdom and that they should look out.

He might have thought he was keeping up with the times when he had the tattoo imbedded into his skin. However, if the intention is to strengthen one's Divine Connection, my suggestion is to let that concept go, perhaps even remove such a tattoo. Connecting with lower vibration levels and a preoccupation with bad, satanic, and demonic concepts will keep a person from having a blissful Divine Connection.

In the last chapter we ended with the concept of GLORY. This is what you share when you are connected with the Divine and actively accessing your connection. So many people have the connection but never open the door. Which one are you? When was the last time you connected in a deep way to the Divine? When would "now" be a good time to get connected?

*I lacked in spark
My flame grew dangerously small
I longed for the fire of the We
The time of no time
When all that was was not
And nothing was real.*

*I longed for the We
The blaze and the brilliance The completion.*

*There is a new,
A beingness,
A brightness,
Found from the We.*

*I in myself
Encompassed by the mass Lacking in spark
Have glimpsed at the new.*

*It is purest light,
Brightest love
The new is the ancient, revealed.
It is a glimmer of the Omni;
It is the remembrance of the We*

*Truth is that which is unreal
I am and exist truly in the We;
Only in my lack of existence
Am I free to be what is not.*
